

Chronic Disease Management

Quick Reference Guide

This short guide will provide you with key information to bill for Chronic Disease Management (CDM) Tariffs.

What are the Chronic Disease Management Tariffs?

- The Chronic Disease Management (CDM) Tariffs were created on April 1, 2012 to help doctors spend more time with the patients that need it most. There are five tariffs that are billable annually for providing comprehensive chronic disease management to a patient with one or more of the following chronic diseases:
 - Diabetes
 - Asthma
 - Congestive Heart Failure
 - Coronary Artery Disease
 - Hypertension

What are the requirements for billing the CDM tariffs?

- Must be general practice physician.
- Provide the majority of a patient's ongoing comprehensive medical care in relation to the management of the chronic disease in the preceding 12 months.
- Provide ongoing coordination with other allied health care providers respecting the management of the patient's condition and patient care plan, as appropriate.
- Provide ongoing communication with the patient, monitoring of the patient's condition and patient care plan, as appropriate.
- Ensure that all of the required services for that particular tariff have been provided to the patient within the preceding 12 months.
- Each tariff may only be claimed once, per patient, in any 12-month period. Only one physician may claim each tariff for a single patient in a 12-month period.
- Where a patient is treated for the management of more than one of the listed diseases, a tariff may be billed for each disease. For example, two separate claims must be submitted when billing CDM tariffs for both Diabetes (8431) and Coronary Artery Disease (8434) for a single patient.
- Claims for additional services (e.g., visits) are payable in addition to these tariffs.
